Each Treasurer has to manage his or her diary around three timetables, the calendar year (we take office on 1st January for twelve months), the academic year and the legal year. This issue of Innerview is traditionally focussed on the second of these cycles when some 400 new student members get their first copy of Innerview, as part of their welcome to the Inner Temple, at the start of their Bar courses.

You are entering our profession at a time of great change but the values you will be taught at the Inn will serve you throughout your careers whatever the legal climate of the day and wherever you may find yourself. I am confident the Bar will survive because it is in the public interest that it should. As I travel around the world, (having just returned from Hong Kong and Malaysia), the title of Barrister still stands for the highest levels of professionalism, ethics, and legal skills. Our reputation extends well beyond these shores and the Inns play a vital role in maintaining it. For us it is a privilege and responsibility in equal measure.

We pride ourselves on being a friendly collegiate organisation and inside these pages you will see a myriad of events that will be taking place between now and when I hand over to Master Jonathan Hirst, Treasurer for 2012, at the end of the year.

Look out for Grand Day, at which I shall be presiding jointly with our Royal Treasurer, Master HRH The Princess Royal, the awards ceremony for the Inner Temple Book Prize, lectures and advocacy training courses, Christmas events in the Temple Church, student society events, and the ever popular daily lunch in Hall where we gather together for what must be the best value meal in town.

Inner Temple is in good heart and keen to engage in all the great legal issues of the day. I am grateful to all those who represent us in these discussions and consultations wherever they are debated. Three themes recur - Education, Access to the Bar for all who have the necessary skill and determination, and high Advocacy Standards. We are determined that our efforts are focussed on promoting all three.

It has been a privilege to be your Treasurer in 2011 and I look forward to meeting as many Benchers, Members and students as possible during the coming term.

THE INNER TEMPLE BOOK PRIZE 2011

The Inner Temple Book Prize sponsored by Wildy's was launched on December 2010 and throughout this year books have been received and reviewed by benchers and senior members of the Inn. Our distinguished panel of judges have now whittled down the list of entrants to a final shortlist of seven books. These books include a broad range of legal subjects and are as follows:

Judges will meet for the last time on the 7 October to decide upon the winners and a prize giving ceremony will be held on the 8 December with prizes presented by the Patron of the prize Master The Royal Treasurer, HRH The Princess Royal.

The Inn would like to offer grateful thanks to all those who have reviewed books over the past year.

Amicus is a legal charity which helps provide representation for those facing the death penalty in the USA. It was founded in memory of Andrew Lee Jones, who was executed 20 years ago in 1991, the last person to die in Louisiana's electric chair. Since their formation in 1992, Amicus has been assisting in the legal representation of those awaiting capital trial and punishment in the United States and raising awareness of potential abuses of defendants' rights. Amicus relies on the generosity of its supporters, and funds its vital work through a variety of special events.

Join us for a memorial evening and drinks reception at Inner Temple on 18 October in the Smoking Room. Our speakers include crime author P.D. James and Lane Nelson, an American writer who once spent time on the same tier of death row as Andrew Lee Jones.

QUESTION & ANSWER DAY FOR PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

A Question & Answer Day for Prospective Students was held on Sunday 19 June 2011. Q&A Day is an annual event held by the Education & Training Department in conjunction with the Junior Bar Association (JBA) at the Inner Temple for university students considering a career at the Bar. The full-day event included workshops on all aspects of training for the Bar, the Inn's scholarships programme, writing a legal CV, gaining pupillage, life as a tenant, opportunities at the Employed Bar and more. A drinks reception was held after the workshops to provide participants with a chance to speak one-to-one with members of the Inn.

Over 120 university students attended from universities across the UK. The sessions were very well received with students responding that they have a much greater understanding of what is involved in training for a career at the Bar and practice.

"This event was outstanding. It shows the commitment of Inner Temple to the support and education of aspiring Barristers... The opportunity to meet with newly qualified barristers and current pupils has provided a very unique insight into current life at the bar, and I very much appreciate the opportunity. Thank you."

Q&A Day 2011 Participant

The E&T Department would like to extend a special thanks to all those junior barristers, pupils and student members, particularly the co-president of the JBA Edward Pleeth (3 Serjeants' Inn), who ran workshops throughout the day. If you would like further information about Question & Answer Day, please contact Anthony Dursi or, for more information on joining the JBA, contact Beth Phillips.

INNER TEMPLE SCHOOLS PROJECT

Master Stern "speed networks" with students

Year 12 students on the Pathways to Law programme at LSE and UCL came to the Inn for their second session on 8 June. Building on their introductory session in January, this event started with a tour of the Inn and visit to Chambers, giving the students a chance to meet and speak to members of Chambers, Clerks and Practice Managers. After lunch, the students participated in a workshop led by the Inner Temple Debating Society, followed by a mock trial and an informal 'speed networking' session in the early evening.

The final session of the Inner Temple Academy 2011 was held on 12 July, with students bringing together everything they had learned during the project to participate in a debating competition. The final round was judged by Master Reader and finalists debated the merits of the cab rank rule.

The E&T Department would like to thank all those who participated, in particular Alastair Hodge (5 Essex Court), Nathan Rasiah (23 Essex Street) and Joseph Templeton (23 Essex Street) who participated in the Mock Trial, as well as Senay Nihat and other volunteers from the Debating Society. Thanks also goes to Master Owen Davies (Garden Court Chambers), Master Stern (2 Bedford Row), Hanif Mussa (Blackstone Chambers), Richard Fowler (Maitland Chambers), Sadat Sayeed (Garden Court Chambers), Simon Purkis (Pump Court Chambers), David Jukes (Hailsham Chambers), Hannah Brown (One Essex Court), Philip Williams (No5 Chambers) and Corinne Bramwell (Great James' Street Chambers).

As part of the Schools Project, a seminar for year 12 and 13 state school pupils from the Greater London Area will be taking place on Friday 11 November 2011. If you would like to help out please contact Amy Mason.

Pathways to Law Mock Trial

LEGAL ACADEMICS

The next small Dinner for Legal Academics will take place on 1 November 2011, chaired by Master Treasurer. If you are interested in our work with legal academics, please contact Anthony Dursi.

MOCK INTERVIEWS

The Mock Interview Scheme aims to help students develop their interview technique and build up confidence prior to pupillage interviews. We are seeking barristers of at least five years Call to help out with the scheme. If interested, please contact Amy Mason.

UNIVERSITY PRESENTATIONS

The E&T Department organises four large Careers at the Bar presentations each October in Oxford, Cambridge, London and Bristol. At each presentation, we hold brief talks from a panel including on life as a BPTC student. During the subsequent reception, university students have the opportunity to gain further one-to-one advice from our student members as well as senior members.

In addition to the university presentations, we also run smaller regional receptions across England and Wales each year, with a number planned for Autumn 2011.

We are seeking members, including student members, to volunteer at these events – particularly alumni of institutions or those with affiliations to particular universities. Please contact Anthony Dursi.

CALLING ALL PUPILS!

The compulsory advocacy course for pupils will begin in October 2011. If you haven't yet registered your pupillage with the Inn please contact Beth Phillips as soon as possible. Even if you are not due to start pupillage until Spring 2012 you must attend an advocacy course before then so please register your details. Failure to do so could result in you not being issued with a practising certificate.

The Practice Management Course will be held on the 14 January 2012. This course is compulsory and information will be sent to pupils at the same time as the advocacy course dates.

EDUCATION DAYS

We have two Education Days coming up next year on Monday 20 February 2012 and Monday 19 March 2012. These sessions are held at the Inn and are for students studying the BPTC at institutions outside London. Programmes involve talks with practitioners, mock trials, exercises on advocacy, discussion groups, demonstration cases and lectures given by leading legal names. Full attendance of each day is worth two Qualifying Sessions.

BARRISTERS WE NEED YOUR HELP

If any barristers would be willing to lend a hand at the Education Days on these dates, then please contact David Miller.

EDUCATION & TRAINING DEPARTMENT

POLICE LIAISON SCHEME

The Police Liaison Scheme aims to promote good relations between the Bar and the Police Service. The scheme allows BPTC students to visit police stations in the London Metropolitan Area and to accompany officers on patrol or in the CID Department. The scheme has helped many students interested in a career at the criminal Bar to become familiar with police station procedures and the way in which incidents are dealt with. BPTC students participating in this year's Inner Temple Police Liaison Scheme will begin their visits to police stations in late 2011. Visits will be arranged throughout the academic year. The scheme is a reciprocal one, with further events organised to give police officers an insight into life at the Bar and on the Bench.

If you are interested in finding out more about the scheme, please contact Amy Mason.

MENTORING SCHEME

The Mentoring Scheme aims to provide students with advice, guidance and a point of contact during their initial stages of becoming a barrister. Mentors are allocated at the beginning of the academic year and demand is always very high. We are in need of more volunteers. If you are a barrister of five years Call or more and would like to help out or would like some further information, please contact Paul Clark.

PEGASUS SCHOLARSHIPS

Applications for the 2012 Pegasus Scholarships will open in early October and the closing date is 30 November 2011. Scholarships are available to tenants or employed barristers (of all the Inns) who have practised as a barrister for up to five years (not including pupillage). This is an opportunity to spend six to twelve weeks in another jurisdiction seeing how its legal system works as well as making new friends and (possibly) escaping the worst of the British weather. For an application form please access the Pegasus pages on the Inner Temple website.

This summer we welcomed six incoming Commonwealth Scholars who had just completed their LLM degrees at the University of Cambridge. The scholars from Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Zimbabwe worked in various chambers and also visited Belfast, the Faculty of Advocates in Edinburgh and the Supreme Court. Four avocats from the Paris Bar also came to London this summer on a mutual exchange programme.

For more information on Pegasus Scholarships, please contact Eamonn O'Reilly.

ACT AS A WITNESS AND GAIN A QUALIFYING SESSION!

The E&T Department is recruiting BPTC students to act as witnesses in mock trials for pupils. As well as gaining a Qualifying Session for attending two evening sessions, this is a great opportunity to take part in the Inn's advocacy training for pupils.

To book your place or for further information, please contact David Miller. Further sessions will be available in February 2011.

We are currently recruiting for the following dates in 2011:

Mock Trial

Monday 21 November: 5.30pm – 7.30pm

Mock Trial

Wednesday 23 November: 5.30pm – 7.30pm

Mock Trial

Monday 28 November: 5.30pm – 7.30pm

Mock Trial

Tuesday 29 November: 5.30pm – 7.30pm

STILL NEED CPD POINTS?

The Advocacy Master Class Series for 4th – 8th year practitioners will take place this autumn as follows:

CIVIL SESSIONS:

Monday 7 November Civil Advocacy

Wednesday 23 November Ethics for the Civil Bar

Sessions are chaired by Master Critchlow, Master Lerego, Master Soole and Master Chadwick.

Each session in the Advocacy Master Class Series is accredited with 3 CPD hours and costs £30.

For more information and a booking form please visit the Inner Temple website or contact David Miller.

CRIMINAL SESSIONS:

Tuesday 25 October Examination of Expert Witnesses

Wednesday 2 November Cross Examination of Witnesses and Speeches (I)

Thursday 3 November Cross Examination of Witnesses and Speeches (II)

Sessions are chaired by Master Lovell-Pank, Master Paget, Master Forrester, Master Coleman and Master Ayling.

HANDLING VULNERABLE WITNESSES

On the weekend of 26-27 November, the Inn will be holding a CPD Weekend on The Handling of Vulnerable Witnesses – organised in conjunction with the Criminal Bar Association. The event will comprise a seminar on Saturday 26 November followed by specialist advocacy training on the morning of Sunday 27 November. The advocacy training session will give advocates the opportunity to cross-examine a vulnerable witness via video-link. Some preparation prior to this session will be required.

The course is being organised in response to concerns that there is insufficient training available for barristers in this area. A recent report by the Advocacy Training Council on this subject noted that “the effective handling by advocates of vulnerable witnesses, victims and defendants is crucial for the good and fair administration of justice and requires skill, experience, education and understanding”.

Seminar speakers will include:

- HHJ Peter Rook QC
- Susan Jacklin QC
- Patricia Lynch QC
- Sarah Whitehouse
- Bobbie Cheema
- Dr Tony Baker – Child/Adolescent Psychiatrist
- Shaun Brewer – Witness Service Co-ordinator, Central Criminal Court
- DCS Caroline Bates – Head of Sapphire Unit, Metropolitan Police
- Donna Ravening – Registered Intermediary

The Saturday seminar is accredited for 6 CPD hours and costs £125. The Sunday morning advocacy training session (at which places are limited) is accredited for 3 CPD hours and costs £40. The Sunday session is only open to those who attend the Saturday session. To request a booking form, please contact Francesca Ellis.

THE MERCHANT OF VENICE PERFORMED BY THE DRAMA SOCIETY

On two less-than-wonderfully sunny summer's evenings, the Drama Society performed The Merchant of Venice in the church courtyard. This is the second year the society has opted to perform Shakespeare in the open air and luckily the weather has, just about, permitted it on both occasions. Two is a coincidence but three a habit so plans are already underway for a third open-air production to take place in July 2012. The Christmas show shall begin rehearsals in October. The society is student-led but is open to all members of the Inn. If you would like details of upcoming auditions please contact Eamonn O'Reilly.

PRIVATE GUEST NIGHT
MASTER MACPHERSON PORTRAIT
WEDNESDAY 29 JUNE

At last June's Private Guest Night, the Inn unveiled the latest addition to its collection: a portrait of Sir William Macpherson of Cluny TD by Bryan Organ.

Recent commissions have included paintings of two Lord Chancellors, Lord Woolf and the President of the International Court of Justice and it was felt by Master Laws, last year's Treasurer, and the Master of Pictures that it would be fitting to recognise a member of the Inn who practised for many years at the Bar, both as Junior and Queen's Counsel, served with distinction as a High Court Judge and President of the Northern Circuit.

Bryan Organ is one of the most celebrated portrait painters in the country. The National Portrait Gallery has no less than five of his works, including portraits of HRH The Prince of Wales, Diana Princess of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh. He has painted the last three Chancellors of Oxford University and his subjects have ranged from Lord Denning to President Mitterand, Martin Cooper the rugby player, Elton John and Lester Piggott. We can now add Master Macpherson of Cluny to that impressive list.

WELCOMING NEW STUDENTS

From 12 to 23 September scheduled tours were available to give new BPTC students an introduction to the Library and its services. Any student who missed the tours and who would like to be shown round the Library may contact the Deputy Librarian (tdennis@innertemple.org.uk) to arrange a suitable time. A virtual tour is available on the Library website for student members unable to visit the Library in person.

The Deputy Librarian once again gave presentations at The City Law School on the services offered by the four Inn Libraries to BPTC students. The updated presentation is also available as a slideshow on the Library's website.

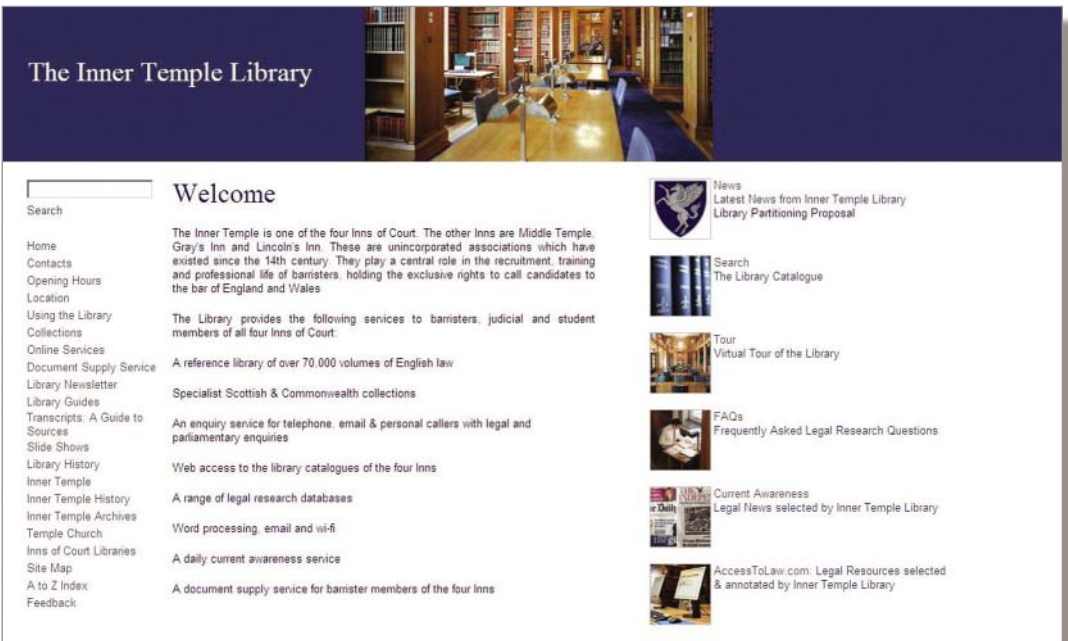

The Library was also represented at the Inn's recent Introductory Evenings for London and out of London students. A range of leaflets and guides was on display and the Deputy Librarian was on hand to answer students' questions.

www.innertemplelibrary.org.uk

WEBSITE CHANGES

The Library website has recently been re-launched with improvements to the content and layout. Links to the most frequently accessed sections of the site now appear on the right-hand side of every page, not just the home page. Page design is now clearer and new images have been added. The site has details of the Library's collections and services, plus links to the online catalogue, Current Awareness blog, AccessToLaw and to FAQs on legal research. It also includes a virtual tour, slideshows of the Library past and present and illustrated histories of the Library and of the Inn.

BELGIAN OLYMPIC & INTERFEDERAL COMMITTEE SECURES FOR INNER TEMPLE

The Belgian Olympic & Interfederal Committee (BOIC) will call the Inner Temple their home for the London 2012 Olympics next summer after signing an agreement with the Honourable Society of the Inner Temple to provide their hospitality facilities for the Games.

The Inner Temple commissioned EXP Sport in August 2010 to secure a client specifically for the Olympic Games. Given their location, their history and their stunning facilities, they wanted to secure a prestigious client for the duration of the Olympic period. Following months of negotiations, the BOIC signed a contract with the Honourable Society of the Inner Temple on 7 July to take the whole site for the duration of the 2012 Olympics to entertain their supporters and their Olympic partners.

For hundreds of years, the Inner Temple has been accustomed to hosting royalty. In more recent times, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II visited the Inn to renew the 400 year Royal Charter that King James I issued to the Inn in 1608 to protect the site as a facility for Legal education. The Inn's own Royal Treasurer, Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal, is a distinguished member of the International Olympic Committee.

For 17 days, the Inner Temple and the Apex Temple Court Hotel will work around the clock to cater for over 11,000 guests within their banqueting hall, state rooms and their award winning garden on the banks of the River Thames.

Patrick Maddams, Sub-Treasurer, commented, "We are thrilled to be welcoming the Belgian Olympic & Interfederal Committee and their distinguished guests to the Inn during next year's Olympics. Given the friendly relations and close proximity of our two countries, we hope that our Belgian guests will have a memorable time with us."

Laura Oakes Managing Director of EXP Sport Ltd who brokered the agreement commented, "We are delighted that the Belgian Olympic & Interfederal Committee has agreed terms with the Inner Temple. They were one of the first clients to view the facilities and anyone who comes to the Inn cannot fail to be impressed by the stunning facilities and the service levels that the Inner Temple offers. The Belgians and the Inner Temple have been a joy to work with and we are very excited about helping them both to deliver a truly world class hospitality facility in just over a year's time."

1961 50 YEARS OF AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL

British lawyer Peter Benenson launches a worldwide campaign, "Appeal for Amnesty 1961", with the publication of an article in the Observer newspaper. The article, "The Forgotten Prisoners", is written after he learns of two Portuguese students who were imprisoned for raising a toast to freedom. Reprinted in newspapers across the world, his appeal leads to the foundation of Amnesty International.

The first international meeting is held in July, with delegates from Belgium, the UK, France, Germany, Ireland, Switzerland and the USA. They decide to establish "a permanent international movement in defence of freedom of opinion and religion".

A small office and library, staffed by volunteers, opens in Peter Benenson's chambers in Mitre Court, London. The 'Threes Network' is established, through which each Amnesty International group adopts three prisoners from contrasting geographical and political areas, emphasizing the impartiality of the group's work.

On Human Rights Day, 10 December, the first Amnesty International candle – which would become the organisation's iconic symbol – is lit in the church of St-Martin-in-the-Fields, London.

GARDEN NEWS

GIFTS OF NATURE

ANDREA BRUNSENDORF
HEAD GARDENER

The Michaelmas daisies seem incredibly early this year, while I and some of our dahlias are still waiting for summer, and by now I guess it isn't going to come, because the first signs of autumn are already here. Many of our plants have started to complete their life-cycle by setting seeds, and a lot of these seed heads can be attractive architectural features; sturdy enough to last the winter in a border or as decorative items for the home, a substitute for cut flowers, which the garden is rather short of during this dormant season.

In the autumn, one of our maintenance tasks is to cut down the perennials, but over the years we have become more selective and have started to leave many plants alone, like Aster umbellatus, Vernonia crinata 'Mammoth' (Ironweed) or clumps of cardoons until their floral structures have finally weathered away at the end of winter. There are other flowers that develop striking seed heads, like the round papery seed pods of the annual honesty that shimmer like silver coins in the evening sun, which might explain how it came by its common name 'Judas coin', or the spiky stems and cones of teasels that turn gold in the low light. I bring dozens of the latter inside, as I love the beautiful shadows and shapes they throw on the wall of my living room on a clear winter's day. All these seed heads don't just provide a food source for our overwintering birds, they also add winter interest as another dimension to our otherwise bare garden and they are good companions to the abundant feathery plumes of the grasses. For the same reason we have integrated numerous species of these, including several cultivars of Miscanthus sinensis, into our borders to shun the bleakness of the wintry weather. Another grass that is worth a mention is Chasmanthium latifolium, or wood oats, whose pendant panicles and bronze spikelets form an intricate feature outside or inside during the winter months. I still have its dried flower stems from last year arching over my mantel-piece.

Besides all these perennials, which are widely used in natural planting schemes for their architectural stature and their benefits to wildlife during the latent time of the year, I have come to appreciate the versatility of Crambe cordifolia (sea kale), sometimes found in the formal settings of a rose garden, or like ours in the Peony Garden as part of a looser design. I've discovered that the 2x2 metre flowering structure, in summer covered by a frothy mass of foam-like flowers, makes an excellent and lightweight alternative to a bulky Christmas tree. I decorate the fragile branchlets of the stalks with the simple straw stars of my childhood, while the more robust branches will bear the weight of such things as the small, beautifully-painted wooden eggs from Easter, or angels made of marzipan and chocolate coins.

A garden doesn't have to be bleak in the winter: there is plenty of scope to dress it with architecturally interesting seed structures, which can also provide a cornucopia of shape and form to bring the beauty of this season right into your own home until spring can again provide the splendour of fresh green and nascent colour.

BRIEF LIVES OF THE MASTERS WHO
MOST INFLUENCED THE EVOLUTION OF THE GREAT GARDEN

THE FIRST MASTER

BY HILARY HALE

AUTHOR OF *THE GREAT GARDEN:
A HISTORY OF THE INNER TEMPLE GARDEN
FROM THE 12TH TO THE 21ST CENTURY*

After the completion of the river embankment in 1771 it took a long time to turn the greatly increased area into anything resembling a garden. Not only was there detritus to be removed from the massive engineering work, but the Society's awkward neighbours who occupied Whitefriars wharf had knocked down most of the eastern wall and had to be sued for the cost of its repairs. For some years the gardener, Mr Allen, spent more time as a hard landscaper, removing rubble and rubbish than as a horticulturalist, but was eventually able to level the reclaimed land in line with the original garden, lay gravel paths and establish a lawn of Dutch clover. When he had done so, it was decided that the supervision of the Garden needed more attention than the Treasurer could give it and in 1782 two Masters of the Bench, the Hon Daines Barrington and Arthur Annesley, were selected as 'Superintendents of the Garden'. From Bench Table Orders and contemporary accounts it appears that Daines Barrington undertook this duty more assiduously than his colleague.

Barrington (1727-1800), the fourth son of the first Viscount Barrington, had the advantage of family connections in the Pelham administration and by the age of thirty was appointed justice of Merioneth, Carnarvon and Angelsey. After becoming K.C. and recorder of Bristol, he was appointed Justice of Chester. Although his friends declared that it was only lack of ambition which prevented him from rising higher in the judiciary, Bentham, while admiring his intellect, was not so generous about his legal capabilities, describing him as 'not intentionally a bad judge, though he was often a bad one'. Nowadays, however, he is probably best remembered as an antiquary and naturalist, both distracting interests which may better explain his early retirement from the law rather than his want of ambition.

He was an active member of the Society of Antiquaries, and his inquiring mind can be well illustrated by the variety of subjects on which he wrote – Arctic exploration, musical prodigies, the language of birds, archery, the Cornish language – although his theories were sometimes mistaken (at one point stating that the Medway was in fact the Thames), attracting Horace Walpole's ridicule and considerable correspondence in the Gentleman's Magazine. He was a friend and correspondent with many notables of his age, from Sir Joseph Banks and Bishop Percy to Johnson and Boswell, and he is justly credited with being the driving force behind Gilbert White writing the Natural History of Selbourne.

He spent much of his long retirement in his rooms at 6 King's Bench Walk and bringing his knowledge and interest in the natural world to the newly-planted Great Garden. Such was his devotion to the garden that, despairing of the damage done to many of its plants by flocks of sparrows, he paid Mr Allen £1 to poison them. This uncharacteristically cruel act would have gone unrecorded had the Bench not refused his claim to recoup the cost, an episode gleefully narrated by Charles Lamb. Despite this touch of parsimony, Barrington was a generous and competent Master of the Garden, whose care of it has been a standard for all his successors.

THE LAUNCH OF THE ORAL HISTORY ARCHIVE

BY CELIA PILKINGTON

The Inn was pleased to hold a reception on the 27 June to launch an exciting new project charting the history of the Inn through recorded interviews with our older benchers, former members of staff, residents and students. The Inn is lucky enough to have as one of its members the broadcaster and barrister Daire Brehan, who as part of the archives committee offered her professional skills to produce a series of highly insightful and revealing interviews which are now available for all to hear at the Inner Temple Archives. An introduction to the project may also be found on the Inner Temple website www.innertemple.org.uk in the About Us section.

The archives has extensive records about each of its members going back to the mid-sixteenth century and the Bench Table Orders provide information about the day to day running of the Inn. The oral history provides us with the opportunity to record the memories and experiences of people associated with the Inn. It is vital to record the thoughts of those involved with the Inn at a time when the legal world is changing at such a fast pace. We are able to go back to the time before the Second World War where interviewees including Master Monier-Williams and Jane Lloyd recall their memories of the Inn before much of it was destroyed by the Luftwaffe. The ruined Inn provided much opportunity for the young Jane Lloyd growing up at the Inn to play games in the bombed out cellars and ruins. Master Monier-Williams recalls the lovely old ‘grubby, sooty’ buildings prior to their destruction. Residential life at the Inn was clearly not such a grand affair as recalled by Master Butler-Sloss who at the start of her married life found herself in a flat in which the bath was in the bedroom separated by a screen only by special request.

The interviews provide fascinating insight into the differing experiences of pupillage, in the past obtained by the payment of 100 guineas. The ancient ritual of the silver count is also captured for us revealing how little some things change at the Inn. One of our longest residing tenants Cynthia Langdon-Davies recalls children everywhere at 6pm in the 1960’s when most barristers packed up and left work for the day. Clearly a more relaxed attitude to parenting was prevalent at this time for she recalls one of our former Treasurers leaving his daughter in a pram in Fountain Court with notice attached ‘please do not feed Fiona’. However this was countered by the firmness of the Christian-Socialist Nursery teacher in the nursery set up by Master Butler-Sloss in the 1960s. Such memories are not to be found in our official papers of our Inn and will make a marvellous addition to the archive to be treasured by those researchers looking for the experiences of those living and working here in the past.

It is hoped to continue the interviews in association with the British Library using some of our students to interview older benchers and members of the Inn thereby involving our students further in the life of the Inn and enhancing relations between our members at all levels.

Master Monier-Williams

TO CELEBRATE THE QUATERCENTENARY OF THE MOST INFLUENTIAL BOOK EVER PUBLISHED IN ENGLISH:
THE TEMPLE CHURCH WEDNESDAY 2 NOVEMBER, 6.45PM

IN THE BEGINNING: THE CREATION OF THE KING JAMES BIBLE, 1604-1611

BY MASTER GRIFFITH-JONES

Members of the Inn have good reason to be grateful to Master Pascoe for his dramas and readings: his gripping account of the trial of Penn and Mead; his dramatization, in the Temple Church, of the trial of Admiral Byng; and most recently his star-turn in this year's Revels in Hall.

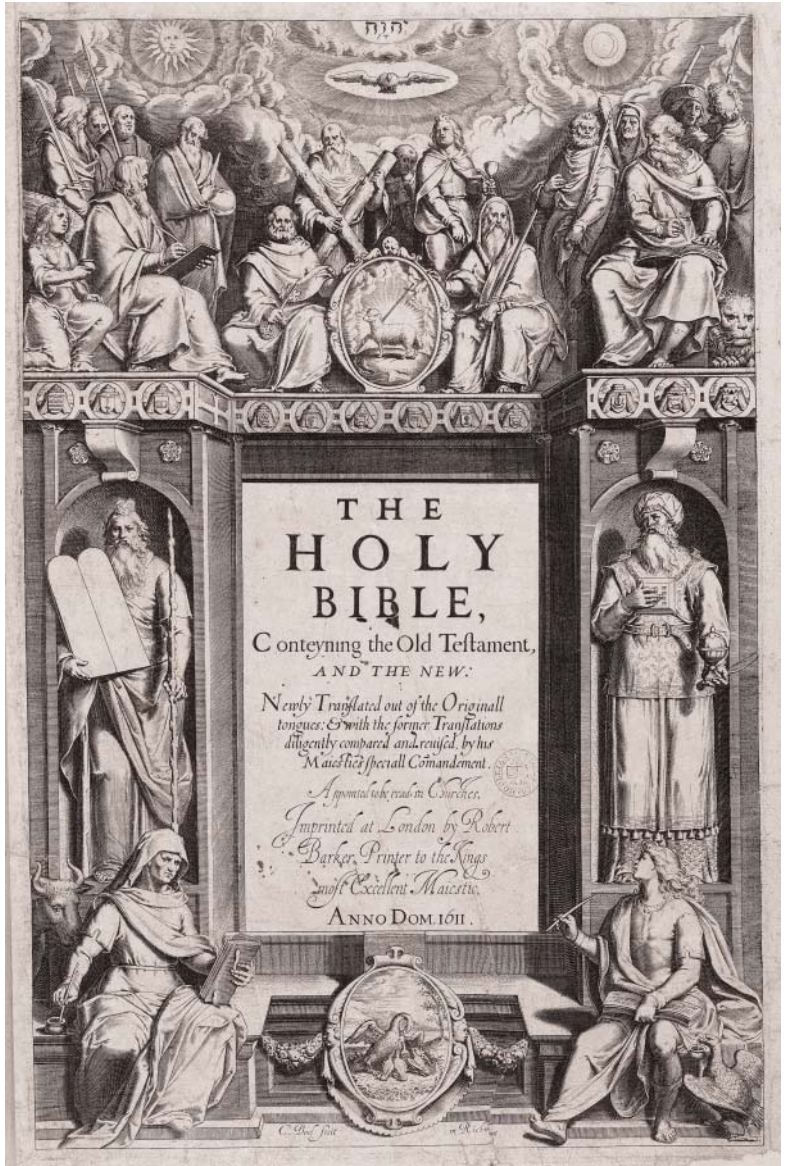

Master Pascoe is turning his mind to the most famous book in the English language: the King James Bible. It was conceived and commissioned at the 1604 Hampton Court Conference, and was published in 1611. King James VI of Scotland had just arrived in England and was starting to flex his constitutional muscles; fears of Roman Catholic Europe were fanned into flame by the Gunpowder Plot of 1605; the Puritans were agitating ceaselessly for a Calvinist polity. In these turbulent waters the six teams of scholars worked on the translation of Christendom's most vital – and in the “wrong” hands most dangerous! – text. Drafts, reports and responses survive from the time and at Master Pascoe's hands will be brought vividly to life in this semi-dramatised account of the translators and their times.

Serving the King – and no doubt laughing nervously at his risqué jokes – was a dazzling cast of scholars. Lancelot Andrewes, the most famous preacher of the day, knew fifteen modern and six ancient languages. Laurence Chaderton had been Reader of the Temple here at the Temple Church; he would live on, well over 100 years old, into the 1640s, and was said to have outlived many of the trees he had planted in his youth. (He as well was a fine preacher. Two hours into one sermon he paused, and commented that it was time for him to stop. His congregation protested that he should continue – and so, for another whole hour, he did. Members of the Inn are probably relieved that the present Reader and I do not collection of Middle Temple.

try following his example.) One of the first – and disparaging – responses to the new translation was from the Inn’s own hero John Selden, who asked why the translators had invented or retained so many stilted Hebraisms.

The King James Bible has found its way all round the world – and beyond. On Christmas Eve 1968 the astronauts of Apollo 8 photographed “Earthrise” over the moon’s horizon. Watching the scene, the astronauts quoted the first words of the King James Bible: “In the beginning, God created the heaven and the earth...” One-sixth of the world’s population is believed to have been listening to the live audio-transmission from the capsule. It is said that one Japanese journalist at Houston, confused by this interjection, rang NASA to ask what the astronauts were saying. “Easy, sir, came the response: “Go to the drawer in your hotel room’s bedside-table, take out the book you will find there, and turn to page one.” The journalist duly found his Gideon Bible and the text. In his report to Tokyo he praised NASA for so efficiently leaving, in advance, the mission transcript in his room.

Four hundred years after the KJV’s completion Master Pascoe is gathering together a stellar cast in his turn, of Benchers and members of the two Inns. They will be accompanied by the great lutanist Dai Miller and two of our own choirmen, singing songs of the time by Dowland and Campion.

We hope you can join us for a most special evening in the Temple Church. Tickets are available at www.templemusic.org, 020 7427 5641.

Concerts in the Temple

OCTOBER TO DECEMBER 2011

Into the Autumn, award-winning mezzo-soprano Sarah Connolly comes to Middle Temple Hall on Friday 14 October. This Temple Song recital will feature songs by British composers Howells, Gurney, Britten and Bennett, alongside Schumann lieder.

We are pleased to welcome back acclaimed choral composer and conductor John Rutter to the Temple for a Come and Sing day on Saturday 22 October. Pieces including John Rutter's own Gloria will be rehearsed through the day, plus a variety of choral music, old and new. The day will last from 11am until 4.45pm and the £25 ticket includes a sandwich lunch.

On Monday 7 November, The Sixteen will return to the Temple Church with their acclaimed director, Harry Christophers, to perform a programme of works by Monteverdi, including the Selva morale e spirituale.

Lyric tenor James Gilchrist joins pianist Julius Drake in Middle Temple Hall on Thursday 10 November for a Schubert recital, focusing on the composer's evocative song cycle, Schwanengesang.

On Thursday 17 November, András Schiff makes a welcome return to the Temple after a rapidly sold-out and rapturously received recital in 2008. This highly-anticipated recital of themes and variations will include Mozart 12 Variations in B flat on an Allegretto K500, Mendelssohn Variations Serieuses op 54,

Haydn F min Variations Hob XVII:6, Schumann Theme with Variations in E flat "Geister Variations" and Beethoven Diabelli Variations op 120.

On Thursday 1 December the much-admired Temple Church Choir will perform music for Advent and Christmas, including Vaughan Williams' famous Fantasia on Christmas Carols for choir and 'cello, and Poulenc's four Christmas Motets.

On Tuesday 6 December, the 2011 Temple Song series concludes by welcoming back celebrated British soprano Carolyn Sampson to the Temple after her outstanding recital in the 2008 Festival. She will perform songs by Brahms, Fauré and Poulenc with pianist Julius Drake in the Temple Church.

All dates and artists may be subject to change
